Events

Each classroom will be choosing a Student of the Week starting this Friday.

There will be no school on Labor Day, September 1st.

We are now eating lunch at 11:25 to 11:45 on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. We still eat at 12:05 on Tuesday.

I will be calling each of you within the next week. This will be a positive call. If you have any questions, please feel free to ask.

Student Strengths and Learning Strategies

The year is off to a good start. It feels like this is going to be a great year.

Presently we are doing some general review and just getting back into a school routine.

We have started all subjects and we are just about finished with the introductory lessons and ready to start with the first real lessons.

The spiral notebooks you bought are being used for a variety of ideas such as to write down reflections/ideas from our silent reading and our lessons, write 5 sentences (Give Me Five) about a topic and journal writing, and to write morning work. One will become a math notebook, and another a science/social studies notebook. We will also have a "Brain Crunch" Notebook for students to work on a list of topics to do individually when they have finished their other work and do not feel like reading.

To help our brains understand and remember things we will be reading with a pencil in hand, taking notes, making concept maps, and writing to show what we know.

Give Me Five: The 5 sentences mentioned earlier will be used to help teach grammar, parts of speech, compound sentences, paragraphs, essays, and a variety of other skills.
