FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) student group at ACCHS put on a Prom Fashion Show on March 15. The girls received donations of nice used dresses which they modeled and then sold to benefit the Madonna Brain Rehabilitation Hospital in Lincoln, NE in honor of Liz Thompson. (Liz was a patient there last year after her car accident.) The dresses that did not sell were taken to Manhattan, KS and donated to the KSU chapter of Becca's Closet, a non-profit nationwide organization that collects gowns, party dresses, and accessories and gives them to anyone in need of a dress for an upcoming event such as prom. The girls modeling the dresses at the fashion show were Hannah Boos, Chelsie Olmstead, Mary Schletzbaum, Allegra Gigstad, Gentry Linscott, Liz Thompson, Jillian Landwehr. Jesse Hoffman was the emcee for the event and Heather Kester managed the lighting in the high school auditorium. Principal Mark Preut made an appearance on stage, too. He was overheard committing to modeling a dress if one could be found in his size. The sly group members searched the drama closet until they found just the right dress to see Mr. Preut on the runway in a dress.

After the fashion show, guests enjoyed cookies and punch while they made their selections of dresses. Guests were also able to visit with Regina Buttron about tuxedos, Shawn Gigstad had Cookie Lee jewelry and accessories for sale and, Jenny Funk of Tangles, Tips, and Tans salon brought books of hairstyles. She also sponsored a drawing for free tanning sessions and a goody bag of hair products. Cy Wallisch is the sponsor of FCA at ACCHS.
