FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Friday, February 11, 2011

Superintendent Steve Wiseman met with superintendents from 16 Kansas School Districts on Monday, February 7 to discuss the impending budgetary cuts to Kansas schools and share ideas on how to minimize the negative effect on student learning caused by these budget constraints.

During the meeting, the school leaders reviewed their current cash balances, shared the budget cutting measures they had already put in place, brainstormed additional cost cutting measures, and studied ways to work together to provide services to students in the face of dwindling dollars.

Facing a cut of $75.00 per student in funding for the current school year and an additional cut of $157.00 for next school year, Mr. Wiseman and fellow Kansas leaders were working collaboratively and creatively to make sure no solution was overlooked in working to meet the needs of Kansas students.
